

Year 4 Home Learning Week 13 - 29.6.20-3.7.20

Topic Support Document

This week you will be looking at Computing, Religious Education and PSHE.

Lesson 1 - Computing

Using your story and a device that records an audio, record your story with different sound effects.

Things to think about:

- How are you going to make your sound effects? Are you going to use your voice or objects?
- How are you going to record your story? Are going to use a phone? Tablet or computer and mic?
- What is your story? How are your sound effects going to add to your story?

Lesson 2 - Religious Education

Research the ceremony of Raksha Bandhan and create a poster about how it is celebrated and what it entails. You can use any format you wish to create your poster .e.g. by hand or on the computer.

Information to research and include in your poster:

- What is Raksha Bandhan?
- Who celebrates it?
- When is it celebrated?
- How is it celebrated?
- Why is it important?

Challenge/Extension: Write a paragraph explaining why Raksha Bandhan is important to the Hindu religion.

Lesson 3 - PSHE

Think carefully about your friendships and relationships with different groups of people and complete the activity provided.

Think about and discuss the following things with a member of your family:

- Think you the people who are special to you. Why are they special to you? Think about who is in your family and your friendships.
- How do these different people make you feel?
- Are there some people you are closer to than others? Why do you think this is?

- How do you keep your special relationships in your life? How do you treat these people?

Complete the following Relationship Circle. Remember placing a person further out doesn't mean you don't like them, only that they are not one of the special close relationships that have a big effect on your life.

Now take some time to reflect further on your relationships with people. Use the sentence below to help you.

A special relationship I have is with...I help keep that relationship special by...

Complete the sentence by filling in the blanks.
