

How to Wash a Woolly Mammoth

Is your woolly mammoth leaving giant, dirty footprints all over your house? Is he starting to smell? Are you tired of putting up with filth and mess every day? If so, it is very likely that your fluff bomb needs a wash. Don't worry, there is a solution! Although woolly mammoths are large creatures, they are fun to wash. Ready to turn your mucky woolly mammoth into the cleanest woolly mammoth in the world? Let's dive in!

What you will need:

- Extra bubbly bubble bath
- Very, very big bath tub
- Nice, warm water
- A dirty, woolly mammoth
- Warm, fluffy towels
- Stone Age, Bone Age shampoo and conditioner
- A huge brush/broom

Step 1

First, you must persuade your cute, furry woolly mammoth into the bathroom while you fill up the bathtub with fresh, warm water from the tap. However, it might take a while because woolly mammoths do get thirsty! Woolly mammoths don't like baths but they are stinky!

Step 2

Next, add the bubbly bubble bath. Add lots and lots to make the bath extra bubbly! Watch out because your cheeky woolly mammoth might try to pop the bubbles quickly.

Step 3

Now, this is the tricky part! You need to chase your woolly mammoth quickly into the bathroom and place him into the bath tub. Here are some top tips of how to get him in. You will need to try a few, maybe a crane to lift him in or a skateboard and skate him in!

Step 4

Once he's in the bath, remember to grab your brush and start scrubbing but be careful because your furry friend may be ticklish. Remember, it may hurt so be gentle but he does need to be clean!

Step 5

Soon, you will need to use chicken feet shampoo because if you don't, your fluff bomb won't be clean at all. Try not to get it in his eyes (you may want a spare towel available in case some goes in his eyes). Gently rinse out the shampoo. Then coat him in Stone Age, Bone Age conditioner. Here is where you can give him some hairstyles.

Step 6

Last, but not least, your favourite furry friend will be nice and clean with soft, shiny wool. Eventually, he will want to leap out the window and get dirty again but for now, wrap him in a towel and dry his wool.
