

How to Wash a Woolly Mammoth

Do you have a woolly mammoth? Is he leaving footprints all over your house? Are you tired of putting up with filth and mess every day? If so, it is very likely that your stink bomb friend will need a bath. Don't panic, help is here to clean your mammoth. Don't worry, it is easy! Ready to have the cleanest mammoth in the world? Let's dive in!

What you will need:

- A mammoth
- Extra bubbly bubble bath
- Stone Age, Bone Age shampoo
- Shower cap (optional)
- Very, very bog, fluffy towel for the very big mammoth
- Extra good smelling soap

Step 1

First, you must make your mammoth get into the bathroom where you will fill the bathtub with fresh, warm water straight from the tap. This could be easy but woolly mammoths really don't like baths so please be aware! However, they do like to drink the bath water so watch he doesn't get too thirsty!

Step 2

Next, add the Stone Age, Bone Age bubbles into the bathtub and make sure to spread the bubbles all over the bath. Make sure you put a lot in because your woolly mammoth will pop the bubbles!

Step 3

Now this is the tricky part! You need to round up your woolly mammoth across your house and then get him in the bath. Here are a few top tips to lure your woolly mammoth into the bath. You could use a heavy digger or you could also use a skateboard or a scary monster mask to scare him into the bath. It is up to you how you will get him in the bath, but get him in!

Step 4

Once you have your furry friend in the bath, now grab your broom and start scrubbing quickly but also carefully because you don't want to hurt your huge friend. You also need to clean your friend!

Step 5

Soon, you will need to use the Stone Age, Bone Age shampoo because you will not be able to clean your woolly mammoth's hair without it! (Make sure you do the shampoo two times!) Make sure you don't get the shampoo in his eyes whilst doing a super cool shampoo hairstyle. Now gently rinse out the shampoo and coat him in the ice age conditioner.

Step 6

Last but not least, your favourite friend will be nice and clean with soft, smooth fur. Eventually, your woolly mammoth will want to leap out of your huge window and get all mucky and muddy again! However, for the time being, wrap him in his huge, favourite cuddly towel and give him a huge snuggle so he will not jump out of the window again!
